

PINOY AKO, PINOY TAYO!

PATRONIZING FILIPINO PRODUCTS:

A Phenomenological Study on the Experiences of Filipino Consumers on Local Product Industry Towards Boosting Country's Economy

INTRODUCTION

The local market, specifically in the Philippines, lags significantly behind the competition because even the Philippine market includes international brands consumers prefer to purchase (Chiosy, 2018). Famous international products are preferred over local brands due to their perceived high quality, leading to a decline in local market share (Amercin, 2020). Despite the active campaign to support local businesses, Filipinos still strongly favored imported goods, leading to a colonial mentality and economic losses. Moreover, entrepreneurs tend to franchise international businesses instead of promoting Filipino cuisines and heritage. Filipinos are fond of buying foreign brands because they are a status symbol, and the creative industries in the country need a consistent and focused country brand and culture (Ilone, 2020).

LITERATURE REVIEW

The literature review highlights the factors that influence Filipino consumers' buying behavior and support for local products

- Colonial mentality influences many Filipinos to prefer foreign brands over local products.
- Media and celebrity endorsements strongly affect consumers' purchasing decisions and product preferences.
- Local products are often viewed as less unique or less competitive compared to global brands.
- Supporting local businesses helps strengthen the economy, create jobs, and keep money circulating within the country.
- Local markets continue to face challenges such as low consumer support and limited marketing strategies.

Previous studies lacked focus on:

- Promoting the value of Filipino-made products
- Understanding the impact of celebrity endorsements on buying behavior
- Providing strong strategies and innovations for local businesses

This study aims to address these gaps by exploring ways to encourage Filipinos to support locally-made products and improve local market growth.

METHODOLOGY

A FLOWCHART PROCESS

RESEARCH DESIGN
QUALITATIVE PHENOMENOLOGICAL APPROACH

UNIT OF ANALYSIS
FILIPINO RESPONDENTS AGES 18-65 YEARS
OLD LIVING WITHIN DAVAO CITY IN BAJADA TO ROXAS AREA

SAMPLING METHOD
SIMPLE RANDOM SAMPLING

RESEARCH INSTRUMENT
RESEARCH-MADE INTERVIEW

- DATA COLLECTION METHOD
- FIRST SENDING OF APPROVAL LETTER FOR PERMISSION TO CONDUCT THE STUDY
 - SENDING AN INVITATION TO THE PROSPECTIVE PARTICIPANTS
 - ORIENTATION OF PARTICIPANTS
 - SIGNING OF INFORMED CONSENT
 - INTERVIEW PROPER
 - GIVING OF TOKENS

DATA ANALYSIS
CRESWELL'S THEMATIC ANALYSIS
(BRAUN, V., & CLARKE, V., 2012)

MAJOR FINDINGS AND RESULTS

The purchase of domestic goods by Filipinos contributes to developing the Philippines, which can benefit local citizens, the local market, and the state of the economy.

Supporting local products aid local business owners in developing their establishments and products, promoting a locality or region's identity.

To attract Filipino customers, local markets can use marketing psychology and adapt to changing preferences by recruiting influencers, using social media ads, being honest about their products, and utilizing the 4Ps strategy.

Purchasing local goods benefits the community; creates job opportunities and supports micro, small, and medium-sized enterprises.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, the research aimed to encouraged Filipinos to value the products made by their fellow countrymen, promote Filipino products to boost the Philippine economy, advance small Filipino entrepreneurs, and eradicate the colonial mentality among Filipinos. Additionally, this research gave them knowledge of the Philippine market dynamics, which assisted them in comprehending the impacts of their purchases on the local economy, specifically the innovation in the Philippines.

REFERENCES

Amercin, C. (2020). Consumerism In The Philippines: Why Do Filipinos Patronize Foreign Products? Philippine One <https://philippineone.com/711-2/>

Chiongsy, T. S. (2013, December 28). FILIPINOS:COLONIAL MENTALITY? Word Press. Retrieved September 10, 2022, from <https://trinasherylchiongsy.wordpress.com/2013/12/28/filipinoscolonial-mentality/>

J. I. (2021, October 11). Why Do Customers Prefer Global Brands Over Local Brands? BUSINESS POWERHOUSE Magazine <https://www.business-powerhouse.com/why-do-customers-prefer-global-brands-over-local-brands>